Dear Families,

We are back in our groove and it feels pretty good! The students are already hard at work. Last week we thought about the sun, and how it controls all of the weather. We wrote poems about the sun and did some cool sun art.

This week and next we will look at water, rain and clouds. Try to get outside with your kids this week. Don't forget to look up at the sky!

The Camping Trip!

It's less than a month away! This week we'll send home a packet with camp info, frequently asked questions and a permission slip. The dates to mark on your calendar are May 14-15.

Farm Field Trip!

It's a tradition for Barton Kindergarteners to take a trip to the farm. Our whole class, kindergarteners and former kindergarteners, will join Mary Swenson's and Kate's classes for the big trip on May 13. Can't wait! Watch for a permission slip coming soon.

Plant Sale

Our proceeds are way down this year- Today is officially the last day for the Barton plant sale, but if you are able, sell few more anyway. The plants are great quality, and the school gains so much. Help if you can!

Mice! Twice!

Most of you know we came back from spring break to discover the yuckiest smell in the world. Dead mice! Ew! They had quite a party in room 102. Thanks for sending all of the individually wrapped snacks. Keep them coming! We haven't had any evidence since changing our snack strategy.

Book Clubs

We will have our first book club lunch on Monday. Today! Be ready!

Thanks, Kristin
